FACT SHEET: SCREENING TREES

Ligustrum japonicum (Japanese Privet)

Japanese privet is a compact, small sized evergreen tree with camellia-like foliage of shining olive-green which bears large panicles of white flower in late summer and are an attractive addition to this useful tree.

Ligustrum japonicum is an ideal tree for garden screening and is a tough performing species that will thrive on most soils, although it is best to avoid very water-logged areas. It responds well to pruning. We have this useful tree as a standard and in pleached form.

Mature height: 3-5m

Ideal Conditions: Grows well in well-drained soil, is drought tolerant, needs sun-partial sun
